

Dr Naomi McIntyre

Breast Physician

B.Med, FRACGP, FASBP

Dr Naomi McIntyre has worked as a Breast Physician at Sydney Breast Clinic since 2004 and subsequently obtained a Fellowship of the Australasian Society of Breast Physicians (FASBP).

As well as being part of the multidisciplinary team at Sydney Breast Clinic, Naomi also travels to the Northern Territory to perform assessment clinics for BreastScreen NT.

Naomi is very experienced in the diagnosis and management of benign breast conditions and has a particular interest in the diagnosis of breast cancer. Her areas of expertise include clinical breast examination, breast imaging, breast biopsy including fine needle, core and stereotactic biopsy, correlation of results and patient counselling.

Naomi graduated from the University of Newcastle Medical School with a Bachelor of Medicine in 1992.

She commenced General Practice training in 1995 and was awarded a Fellowship of Royal Australian College of General Practitioners in 2000.

Naomi also has a Diploma of Child Health from Sydney University Medical School and a Certificate of Family Planning from Family Planning Association NSW.

In addition to her interests in Breast Medicine and General Practice, Naomi has worked in women's health research at Harvard Medical School, Boston, USA, and has studied Intensive Family Therapy at the Cambridge Family Institute, Cambridge, Massachusetts and drug and alcohol counselling at Boston University, Boston, USA.